It is with great pleasure that I extend my warm greetings to the Chinese Business Chamber (CBC) on the publication of its Directory 2026.

Since its establishment in 1998, the Chamber has played a vital role in representing and supporting the Mauritian Chinese business community-an enduring pillar of our national fabric whose economic dynamism, cultural heritage, and entrepreneurial spirit continue to enrich our nation.

I commend and congratulate Mr. Dany Chung For Yuen, President of the CBC, and all Board Members, for their dedicated and inspirational leadership in strengthening engagement among businesspersons and professionals, locally and internationally, advancing trade and investment missions, and fostering meaningful diplomatic ties.

I further recognise the Chamber's thoughtful efforts to bridge generational gaps within the community-an endeavour that promotes cohesion, continuity, and shared progress.

Message from Mr. Abhimanu Kundasamy,
Chief Executive Officer
of the Economic Development Board (Mauritius)

It is a distinct honour for the Economic Development Board (EDB) to maintain its collaboration with the Chinese Business Chamber (CBC), a longstanding and esteemed partner in the promotion of investment and trade exchanges between Mauritius and the People's Republic of China.

This year marks the 53rd anniversary of the establishment of diplomatic relations between our two countries—an enduring partnership that has continually strengthened over the decades. China's impressive emergence as the world's second-largest economy has created substantial opportunities, from which Mauritius has derived significant benefits.

The CBC, together with the publication of its business directory, continues to play an instrumental role in further consolidating the economic and diplomatic relations between Mauritius and China. Furthermore, the release of this directory will provide an invaluable platform for widening sourcing avenues, reinforcing distribution networks, attracting FDI and enhancing the visibility and market outreach of Mauritian products.

I wish, therefore, to extend my sincere congratulations to the Chinese Business Chamber on the publication of the CBC Directory 2026 and to reaffirm the Economic Development Board's commitment to the continued strengthening of our long-standing partnership in pursuit of shared economic advancement.

Yours Sincerely,

Abhimanu Kundasamy
Chief Executive Officer

Karen FOO KUNE-BACHA

Junior Minister of Youth and Sports

As Junior Minister, I place athletes at the heart of policy, strengthen good governance, protect welfare, and make sport accessible to all

What encouraged you to enter politics?

After a long and successful career as a top-level badminton player representing Mauritius — including at the Olympics — I felt a strong sense of gratitude and duty to contribute to society beyond the court.

My experience in sport taught me values like discipline, perseverance and hard work, which I wanted to use to benefit others, especially youth and athletes.

This motivation eventually drew me into politics by giving back to society, community engagement, and a deep desire to serve the people and future generations of Mauritius.

What is your main focus today as Junior Minister?

As Junior Minister, my central focus is to place athletes at the heart of every policy and decision, while strengthening good governance and promoting sports for all. This means ensuring transparency, integrity and accountability in sports administration, protecting athletes' welfare, and creating systems that allow talent to thrive fairly and safely. At the same time, I strongly believe in sport as a powerful tool for inclusion, values education and public health.

By making sport accessible to all, we nurture discipline, respect and resilience, while building a healthier, more active and united Mauritian society.

What message would you like to share with young people starting their careers?

Starting a career is exciting, but it can also be challenging. There will be moments of doubt, setbacks, and uncertainty.

My message to the young people is to believe in themselves and stay committed to their journey. Success rarely comes overnight. It is built through hard work, discipline, resilience, and the courage to learn from failure.

Every skill learnt, every mistake corrected, and every effort made is building the professional and the person they are becoming.

It's on the strength of its youth that Mauritius has always moved forward.

How do you view the contribution of the Chinese business community in Mauritius?

The Chinese business community has played a vital role in the economic development of Mauritius through entrepreneurship, innovation, and perseverance.

I commend CBC members for their continued contribution to Mauritius's economic dynamism and social harmony

From small family enterprises to established companies, it has played a key role in commerce, trade and job creation across the island.

Beyond economic impact, the Chinese community has enriched Mauritius's multicultural identity through strong values of hard work, respect, social responsibility and community solidarity.

Through business institutions, philanthropy and cultural engagement, they strengthen social cohesion and contribute to the inclusive growth and resilience of the Mauritian nation.

What message would you like to share with CBC members?

I commend your continued contribution to Mauritius's economic dynamism and social harmony. Your commitment to entrepreneurship, innovation, and youth empowerment plays a vital role in building a resilient and inclusive nation.

I look forward to strengthening our collaboration in support of young talents and sustainable growth for the future of Mauritius.

Gaëtan SIEW G.O.S.K.

Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the Republic of Mauritius to the People's Republic of China

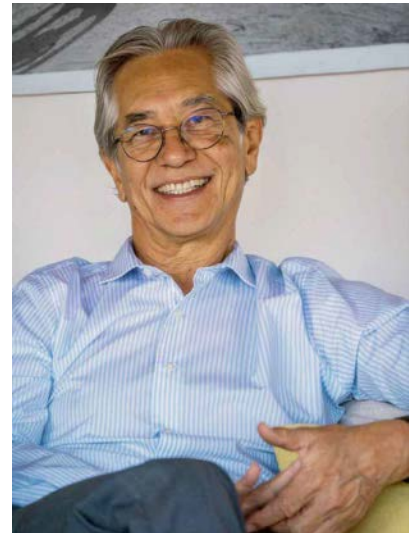

The most rewarding part of my role is building bridges between Mauritius and China while rediscovering its rich culture

What has been the most rewarding part of your role as Mauritian Ambassador to China so far?

The most rewarding aspect is the privilege of building bridges across the 5Cs of Connectivity - Air, Sea, Digital, Economic, and People-to-People - while rediscovering a country I have travelled through for over 25 years. Yet it is more than discovering a country; it is discovering a civilisation - one of extraordinary depth, resilience, creativity, and continuity. Returning to China in an official capacity allows me to reconnect with long-standing friendships, academic networks such as Tsinghua University, and the cultural and intellectual richness that have shaped my understanding of Asia. Engaging with the 175 embassies represented in Beijing adds another layer of inspiration, making this mission uniquely stimulating and globally relevant.

What inspired you to take up this diplomatic mission?

My inspiration comes from decades of travel, collaboration, and admiration for China's dynamism. For 25 years, I have witnessed China's remarkable transformation - its architecture, creativity, technological progress, and cultural resilience. This mission allows me to bring together my passions for architecture, diplomacy, sustainability, and global cooperation. The opportunity to serve Mauritius at a time when connections between Asia and Africa are becoming geopolitically essential felt natural — an extension of a lifelong journey of building bridges.

How would you describe the current relationship between Mauritius and China?

Our relationship is deep, respectful, and anchored in long-term friendship. Today, it is strengthened by shared aspirations in trade, innovation, sustainability, people-to-people exchanges, and cultural cooperation. We also see renewed momentum: discussions on restoring air connectivity, expanding investment, advancing (Free Trade Agreement) FTA 2.0, and enhancing trade and tourism flows. In a world of shifting global currents, the Mauritius–China partnership stands out as stable, constructive, and strategically promising.

What areas of cooperation do you see strengthening in the coming years?

Several high-value areas will continue to deepen:

- Air Connectivity - a strategic priority with transformative impact.
- Digital Transformation & AI - digital twin applications, cloud services, fintech, cybersecurity, e-commerce.
- Climate Resilience & Green Transitions - renewable energy, blue economy, carbon markets, water management.
- Higher Education & Research - strengthening academic ties with institutions such as Tsinghua University and others.
- Healthcare & Biotechnology - diabetes research, pharmaceuticals, medical innovation.

- Culture & Creative Industries - Mauritian multiculturalism resonates strongly with Chinese audiences.

These areas align naturally with the national strategies of both countries.

Which sectors offer the most promising opportunities for Mauritian and Chinese businesses?

For Chinese investors in Mauritius:

- Logistics & Freeport — Mauritius as the most efficient gateway to COMESA, SADC, and AfCFTA.
- Digital & AI Services - cloud, cities, fintech, digital twin technologies.
- Green & Blue Economy - renewable energy, waste-to-energy, ocean economy, AI agriculture
- Specialised Manufacturing - leveraging African preferential access.
- Tourism & Real Estate - eco-resorts, hospitality development, smart city projects.
- The Jin Fei Special Economic Zone redevelopment, a multi-billion-dollar opportunity for next-generation industrial and innovation clusters.

For Mauritian companies in China:

- Premium food products - seafood, rum, niche agricultural products.
- Tourism & Education promotion - a massive outbound market (island honeymooners) with strong interest in multicultural destinations.
- Creative and cultural industries - design, publishing, boutique brands.
- Professional services - sustainability consulting, financial services.

What upcoming initiatives or projects between our two countries are you most excited about?

I am particularly excited about:

- The restoration of direct flights between Mauritius and China, a regional game-changer.
- The revitalisation of the Jin Fei Special Economic Zone, positioning Mauritius as a hub for innovation, logistics, digital services, and renewable energy.

- The establishment of a Mauritius Pavilion in Yiwu and other provinces, boosting Mauritian exports and creative industries.
- New partnerships in education, cultural exchange, digital innovation, healthcare, and green technology.
- Advancing our economic partnership through FTA 2.0.
- Strengthening institutional links with universities such as Tsinghua, Tongji reconnecting with long-standing intellectual and professional networks in China.

Each initiative opens new pathways for sustainable, mutually beneficial growth.

What do you enjoy most about living or working in China?

China is endlessly fascinating. After 25 years of travelling across its regions, I continue to marvel at how ancient traditions, philosophical depth, and cutting-edge innovation coexist. Living in Beijing today — at the centre of a diplomatic community — offers a unique vantage point on global trends and international cooperation. The pace of innovation, the warmth of its people, and the diversity of its landscapes make every day an enriching experience.

Do you have a favourite Chinese city, food, or cultural experience you would recommend?

After two decades of travel, several cities are close to my heart:

- Beijing - a masterpiece where history, culture, and modernity converse constantly.
- Shanghai - a magical city, where the pulse of global finance meets Art Deco heritage, futuristic skylines, and boundless creativity
- Xi'an - the cradle of the Silk Road and a living testimony to global connectivity.
- Hangzhou - where nature, beauty, and innovation coexist in harmony.
- Jinhua-Yiwu - a world-class engine of e-commerce and entrepreneurial energy.

Culturally, I always recommend a traditional Chinese tea ceremony - a moment of refinement, serenity, and profound cultural symbolism.

Eric NG PING CHEUN

Senior Adviser to the Ministry of Finance

With the cooperation of all stakeholders, the country will be able to overcome these difficult times

How would you describe the current economic situation in Mauritius?

The new government has inherited a very dire economic situation with public finances in shambles. In view of the high budget deficit and the high public sector debt, the government's first priority was to put order in public finances. The economic and fiscal measures that it has taken have played a key role in helping Mauritius maintain its investment-grade status under Moody's credit ratings. This achievement has strengthened confidence in the country's financial sector, leading to renewed investor trust.

Despite the lingering effects of the economic mismanagement of the previous government, GDP growth is projected to remain above 3.0 per cent in 2025. The unemployment rate has declined to 5.6 per cent in the third quarter of 2025 from 5.9 per cent in the corresponding quarter of 2024, with employment of Mauritians increasing by 9,000 to 556,400. The headline inflation rate has remained below 4.0 per cent for the year 2025. Gross official international reserves rose to USD 10.3 billion at the end of 2025, representing 14.3 months of import cover. And tourist arrivals have reached a record of 1,436,250 for the year 2025.

What are the main challenges the Mauritian economy is facing today?

Our main challenge is to stabilise the exchange rate of the rupee following the massive depreciation of the local currency over the past 10 years. Several measures have been taken by the Bank of Mauritius in this regard, while its independence in formulating and implementing monetary policy has been reinstated. True, the rupee has recently benefitted from the weakening of the US dollar on the international market.

In the long run, we cannot just rely on the interventions of the central bank on the domestic market. The country needs to revamp its export sector, targeting both goods and services, and to attract more foreign direct investment. Reducing the trade deficit and financing it with a capital account surplus are a big challenge.

Precisely, how is Mauritius working to attract more foreign investment?

We do not have a problem of attracting foreign direct investment (FDI), but the issue is how to bring about a sectoral diversification of FDI in Mauritius. More than two thirds of FDI flows, lured by generous fiscal incentives, go to the real estate. The government's strategy is rather to get more FDI in productive activities, namely industrial manufacturing as well as financial and professional services, which would bring tangible benefits to the national economy. To achieve this objective, the Economic Development Board has established some key performance indicators. Above all, there must be greater synergy between the EDB, the ministries, the local government and the various public agencies to speed up the approval process for investment projects.

Which sectors do you believe have the strongest growth potential?

The 2025-2026 Budget has identified five new growth poles: the green economy, the blue economy, the circular economy, the agro-industry and the adoption of artificial intelligence and disruptive technologies. The country needs to diversify its industrial base while consolidating its service activities. Projects worth Rs 30 billion in the renewable energy sector will be implemented in the next three years. There is a huge potential in fostering a sustainable and inclusive economy and in promoting food and energy security, decarbonization of the economy and digitalization of the public services and of all economic activities.

What measures is the government prioritising to support economic development?

A high-level steering committee has been set up under the chairmanship of the Junior Minister of Finance, Dhaneshwar Damry, with representatives of the private sector to follow up on the measures announced in the government programme. Emphasis is being laid on removing administrative bottlenecks in order to accelerate investment projects. Applications for work permits will also become less burdensome with a fast-track and simplified rules-based system. Moreover, port infrastructure is high on the agenda as the government is aiming at boosting exports and at developing the ocean economy. Last, but not least, public sector reforms are more than necessary to propel the country on a higher plane of economic development.

How is Mauritius preparing for future global economic uncertainties?

Mauritius is facing economic uncertainties such as the independence of the Fed, the on-again off-again approach of the Trump administration to international trade, the ongoing war in Ukraine and geopolitical tensions in several parts of the world. These have direct and indirect impacts on the Mauritian economy. It is therefore essential for the country to build economic resilience through structural reforms and creating fiscal space that will help withstand external shocks.

With a view to restoring sound fiscal stewardship, the government has embarked on a bold fiscal consolidation plan combining enhanced revenue mobilisation, prudent expenditure management and improved public-sector efficiency. A number of measures have already been implemented to ensure that public funds are used in such a way as to maximise economic benefits and minimise inefficiency. The Performance-Based Budgeting system has been re-introduced to systematically link funding with results and outcomes and to help reduce wastage; and the number and functions of public bodies have been rationalised.

What message would you like to share with the business community?

The government is determined to redress the public finances and to fix the economy. I would ask the business community to bear with the government while bringing its fair share contribution to that endeavour. With the cooperation of all stakeholders, the country will be able to overcome these difficult times.

Eric LEAL
CEO Leal Group

LEAL has been active in electric mobility for over 10 years, with more than 2,300 EVs sold to date

How is LEAL positioned today in electric mobility in Mauritius?

We have been active in electric mobility for over 10 years, with more than 2,300 EVs sold to date. Our strategy focuses on expanding our BMW, MINI, BYD, KIA and GWM EV ranges to serve a wider range of customer segments, while making EV ownership more accessible through attractive financing solutions and strong total cost of ownership benefits. We also support customers with dedicated EV workshops to ensure peace of mind after purchase.

What are the main misconceptions about electric vehicles in the local market?

The most common misconceptions relate to range, cost and charging. In reality, daily driving needs in Mauritius are well within the range of modern EVs. While EVs may appear more expensive upfront, long-term savings on fuel and maintenance are substantial. As for charging, infrastructure is expanding rapidly, both at home and in public spaces.

How do you ensure strong after-sales support for EV customers?

We have invested heavily in certified EV technicians, advanced diagnostic and connected tools, as well as strategic local stock of critical parts and batteries. This allows us to deliver reliable, efficient and long-term after-sales support.

How do photovoltaic solutions fit into your overall strategy?

Photovoltaic solutions are a natural extension of electric mobility. Since 2013, we have been delivering high-quality turnkey PV systems designed for durability and performance. Our solutions include smart monitoring, optimisation and energy storage, and are backed by strong international technology partnerships, excellent warranty conditions and competitive pricing. Most importantly, we offer a complete ecosystem that connects home energy, EV charging and storage.

How do you see the market evolving over the next five years?

We expect continued growth in EV and hybrid adoption, alongside more digitalised and connected mobility experiences. Key opportunities include corporate fleet electrification, integrated PV and mobility packages for SMEs, and the development of predictive maintenance and connected services.

What are your strategic priorities and upcoming innovations?

Our priorities are clear: diversification into EVs, PV and integrated services, delivering a premium customer experience, and continuously strengthening our technical capabilities. Looking ahead, we will introduce new BMW, MINI, BYD, KIA and GWM EV models across our brands, smart charging solutions, more digitalised after-sales services, and bundled PV and mobility offers.

As LEAL is a Corporate Affiliate of CBC, how can the CBC further support LEAL in this market?

CBC can play an important role in promoting sustainable mobility initiatives, encouraging greater EV adoption among businesses, and organising focused events on mobility, energy, and innovation to support knowledge sharing and collaboration.

Q: How would you describe LEAL's relationship with the CBC?

LEAL enjoys a longstanding, trust-based partnership with the CBC. The Chamber provides a strong platform for business engagement, providing valuable visibility within the Sino-Mauritian business ecosystem and enabling meaningful networking and the development of strategic partnerships. The CBC also delivers relevant economic insights that help us better understand market trends and opportunities.

The CBC provides a strong platform for business engagement, offering LEAL visibility, meaningful networking, and strategic partnership opportunities

Chinese Business Chamber Objectives

The Chinese Business Chamber (“CBC”) was set up with the following objectives in mind:

- (a) Promote interaction among business persons and professionals.
- (b) Facilitate meetings between members and visiting business persons and professionals.
- (c) Promote activities, locally and overseas, for the benefit of the business and professional sectors.
- (d) Foster links and affiliation with other businesses and professional associations.
- (e) Represent the interests of its members vis à vis governmental and non-governmental authorities.

The Journey of the Chinese Business Chamber: A Personal Reflection

The Chinese Business Chamber has travelled a remarkable path since its establishment in 1998. I still recall with pride being present at its launching event at the Caudan Waterfront. The choice of venue was symbolic and meaningful, as the Port Louis harbour has always been a strong emblem of Mauritius' commercial heritage and business dynamism.

From its early days, the CBC has stayed true to its core mission. Over nearly three decades, the Chamber has been shaped and strengthened by successive teams and Presidents, each adding their own contribution—brick by brick—towards the collective vision. Guided by the fundamental objective of advancing its members' interests, the CBC has consistently pursued opportunities to bring people together, foster dialogue, and promote business growth.

Throughout the years, the Chamber has organised numerous networking events, talks, dinners, conferences, and brainstorming sessions. These initiatives have enabled our members to benefit from business diplomacy, build meaningful connections, and exchange ideas that drive progress. Today, after 28 years of activity, the CBC can rightfully be recognised as a successful NGO and a respected institution within the Mauritian business landscape.

In 2018, I had the privilege of serving as President of the Chamber. This role allowed me to deepen our engagement with mainland China by leading several delegations to major cities such as Beijing, Shanghai, and Zhangjiajie, among others. Out of the many Memoranda of Understanding signed during that period, one stands out as a defining milestone: the CBC's admission as a member of the Silk Road Chamber of International Commerce (SRCIC). This affiliation expanded our horizon, giving Mauritius—through the CBC—access to strategic opportunities along both the Silk Road and the Maritime Silk Road.

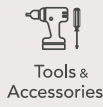

The CBC has enriched my professional journey in many ways. It has enabled me to build relationships both locally and internationally. Some of these connections have evolved into business collaborations, while many others have allowed me to introduce members to one another, facilitating partnerships and supporting their growth. It is always rewarding to see the Chamber serve as a dynamic platform where businesspeople can meet, exchange, and create value together. Valuable exposure to how business is conducted in more advanced countries has broadened my understanding and perspective. This experience has enabled me to adapt, improve, and grow by implementing proven processes that have contributed positively to my company's development and growth.

Through initiatives such as business trips—mainly in Asia—meetings with delegations from foreign countries, and attendance at talks and summits led by leaders in their respective fields, CBC has significantly enriched my business exposure. In addition, networking among CBC members and corporate affiliates has been invaluable, enabling knowledge sharing, collaboration, and the adoption of best practices that have had a positive impact on my company's growth. Overall, CBC serves as a catalyst for business growth while fostering meaningful international business diplomacy.

Strengthening Connections: How the CBC Benefits from its UCA Affiliation

Since 2017, the Chinese Business Chamber (CBC) has been a founding affiliate of the United Chinese Associations (UCA), the largest federation of Chinese associations in Mauritius and Rodrigues. Bringing together 33 affiliates - including one from Rodrigues - and representing over 5,000 members through its associations, UCA serves as the principal platform for cultural preservation, social cohesion, and community development within the Sino-Mauritian community.

UCA's affiliates include long-established organisations such as the Heen Foh Lee Kwon Society, the Hua Lien Club, senior citizens' associations, and other key community groups. To date, CBC remains the only affiliate representing the corporate sector. Notably, when UCA was founded, CBC's representative was elected to lead the federation, with CBC Past President Eddy Tong Sam serving as UCA's first President in 2018.

A Strategic Role within UCA

CBC has held an uninterrupted elected seat on the UCA Managing Committee since 2018, reflecting the federation's continued confidence in the Chamber's leadership and its contribution to community-wide strategy. This representation strengthens UCA by integrating business perspectives into its initiatives.

Over the years, CBC representatives have played active roles within UCA, including Past President Eddy Tong Sam as founding President and Past President Antoine Kon-Kam King as Assistant Treasurer. Since 2025, CBC has been represented at UCA by Vice President Angelie Ng Thow Hing, a CBC Board Member since 2019 who has served as Treasurer, Secretary, and Vice President, bringing valuable governance experience to her elected role at UCA.

CBC's Affiliation with UCA: Key Benefits

- Networking & Collaboration: Access to major community events that foster partnerships, knowledge exchange, and business opportunities.
- Representation & Expertise: Ensures members' voices are heard while promoting professional growth through shared expertise.
- Community & Cultural Engagement: Active participation in flagship initiatives such as the Chinese New Year Banquet and Parade, Dragon Boat Festival, Mahjong competitions, and community projects for seniors, including the Bois Marchand cemetery cleanup and annual charitable initiatives.

Through its affiliation with UCA, CBC reinforces its role as a bridge between business leadership and community development, contributing to a stronger, more united, and forward-looking Sino-Mauritian community.

A Milestone of Inclusion: The Chinese Business Chamber Joins the MCCI Board

On 27 March 2025, for the first time in a quarter of a century, the Chinese Business Chamber (CBC) has secured representation on the Board of the Mauritius Chamber of Commerce and Industry (MCCI), a landmark achievement signalling deeper integration within Mauritius's premier business advocacy body. This historic seat, reserved for a CBC Board Member, is now held by Immediate Past President, Mr. David Koon kam King, providing the Chamber with a front-row perspective into the operational sophistication and influential machinery of the nation's largest business consortium.

The CBC has gained critical insights into the MCCI's robust infrastructure and how it champions its members' interests. This is demonstrated in the MCCI's proactive lobbying on pivotal national issues: from shaping the annual Budget Memo through extensive sectoral consultations, to navigating complex regulatory landscapes like the moratorium on single-use plastics and the implementation of the sugar tax. The MCCI's approach is not reactive but strategic, employing technical committees, commissioning studies, and engaging in sustained dialogue with government ministries to steer policy outcomes.

Central to this efficacy is a dedicated professional secretariat led by a full-time Secretary-General. This permanent executive arm, exemplified by Dr. Drishty Ramdenee's role in the essential continuity, research, and administrative backbone that transforms the board's directions into actionable advocacy. It operates as the engine room, supporting the elected leadership—such as President Charles Harel—who provides the strategic direction and high-level engagement.

Examples of Issues Discussed by MCCI and Their Outcomes

- International Trade Agreements: Advocated Mauritius's interests in key trade deals. Progress achieved on the Interim EPA with the EU (nearing conclusion), UAE CEPA entered into force on 1 April 2025 with member sensitisation planned, active lobbying for AGOA renewal ahead of September 2025, and engagement on AfCFTA rules of origin, with reviews postponed to 2027.
- Plastic Management: Secured a one-year extension of the moratorium on selected single-use plastic food packaging items to January 2026, participated in the Plastic Management Committee, and maintained calls for exemptions for pre-packed food.
- Budget Advocacy: Conducted sector consultations and submitted the MCCI Budget Memo 2025/26, followed by post-budget debriefs and a supplementary memo.
- Sugar Tax: Highlighted implementation challenges; expansion was delayed but not prevented.
- Food Regulations 2024: Successfully obtained a six-month extension for new labelling requirements and continued technical engagement.

Past President (2023-2024)

Establishing Operations in Mauritius to Bridge Africa and the United States

In the dynamic landscape of global finance, where capital seeks both stability and opportunity, selecting an operational base requires strategic foresight. At Stewards, we have consistently prioritized the development of robust investment structures that integrate local knowledge with international networks to create sustainable value. This commitment has led us to establish our presence in Mauritius, viewing it not merely as a secure foundation but as the optimal conduit for connecting Africa's emerging growth prospects with the strength of the United States economy.

Our decision to base operations in Mauritius is deliberate, grounded in its established advantages as an International Financial Centre (IFC). The nation features a strong economic framework, characterized by prudent fiscal policies and a diversified portfolio of sectors, including finance, technology, and tourism, which support steady expansion. The 5.1% GDP growth recorded in 2024 exemplifies this durability amid international economic fluctuations. Geographically, Mauritius is strategically situated at the intersection of Africa and Asia, with affiliations to key regional organizations such as the Southern African Development Community (SADC), the Common Market for Eastern and Southern Africa (COMESA), and the African Continental Free Trade Area (AfCFTA), thereby facilitating access to extensive markets.

These benefits are reinforced by tangible incentives, including a network of 53 double taxation avoidance agreements (22 with African nations) and 44 investment promotion and protection agreements (25 focused on Africa). These instruments extend beyond formalities, offering reduced risks, complete foreign ownership, unrestricted capital movements, and straightforward repatriation of profits. Combined with Mauritius' stable political environment, a leading African democracy in terms of governance, economic freedom, and peace. This creates a setting conducive to long-term strategic planning without undue disruptions.

Our conviction extends further: Mauritius is positioned to emerge as the primary IFC for fostering connections between Africa and the United States. It has already directed over $150 billion in foreign direct investment (FDI) into Africa over the past decade and is now expanding this role transatlantically. Through our operations across Mauritius, South Africa, and the United States, we are actively realizing these linkages. For instance, our Stewards Private Credit Fund, which grew from $30 million in early 2025 to $207 million by end of year is proof of our conviction.

This efficacy stems from Mauritius' adherence to international standards, including those set by the OECD, EU anti-money laundering directives, and FATF recommendations, which foster credibility and confidence.

Looking to the future, the Nasdaq listing of our U.S. affiliate will enhance these interconnections, attracting additional institutional participants and expanding transaction volumes. We intend to continue our growth in Mauritius, collaborating with regulatory authorities to extend our licensed activities.

Although modest in size, Mauritius possesses immense potential. By capitalizing on its stability, comprehensive treaties, exemplary regulations, and innovative capabilities, it is destined to serve as the vital nexus between African aspirations and American investment. At Stewards, we are privileged to contribute to this evolution, generating enduring prosperity that spans continents.

We look to the CBC as a platform to reach out to the Chinese business community, which is one of the most vibrant business communities in Mauritius. As a financial company, our growth is highly dependent on external service providers such as management companies, law firms, and accounting and auditing firms, and being part of the CBC has helped us identify these external service providers. In our line of business, we believe in building bridges above all else, and the CBC is one such organisation whose mission aligns with ours.

We greatly appreciate the yearly CBC President's Dinner, which provides a once-a-year opportunity to reconnect with the Chinese business community as well as members of the government. We believe that business success is a joint venture between the private and public sectors, and the yearly CBC President's Dinner has been a key endeavour of the CBC that has contributed to our company's success.

Overall, working with the CBC has helped us remain grounded when it comes to doing business in Mauritius..

I joined the Chinese Business Chamber through professional networking and referrals from fellow entrepreneurs who spoke highly of CBC's role in fostering meaningful business connections and cross-cultural collaboration. From the first interaction, it was clear that CBC is a dynamic platform for business growth and knowledge sharing.

CBC has contributed significantly to the growth of my business by providing access to a strong business network, facilitating introductions to potential partners, and creating opportunities for collaboration. The Chamber's events and initiatives have helped broaden my business perspective, strengthen supplier and partner relationships, and stay informed about market trends and business opportunities.

CBC has been a valuable support platform when navigating business challenges, creating an environment where issues can be openly discussed and practical insights shared, helping informed decisions. Networking events and forums organised by CBC have been especially beneficial and allow direct interaction with industry leaders.

CBC has positively influenced both my personal and professional development by encouraging continuous learning, cultural understanding, and strategic thinking. Engaging with a diverse group of entrepreneurs and professionals has strengthened my leadership approach, expanded my business mindset, and reinforced the importance of collaboration in long-term success.

DÎNER PRÉSIDENTIEL DE LA CHINESE BUSINESS CHAMBER
Un grand moment de réseautage et de liens économiques renforcés

La Chinese Business Chamber (CBC) a tenu son 2^e dîner présidentiel annuel le jeudi 3 octobre au Domaine Anna, sous la présidence de David Koon Kam King. Cet événement est devenu un rendez-vous incontournable des dirigeants d'entreprises, diplomates, hauts fonctionnaires et ministres, offrant une plateforme précieuse pour le réseautage et la création de liens économiques. Cette année, l'événement a vu la présence de Dorine Chukowry, ministre du Commerce et de la protection des consommateurs, qui a remplacé le Premier ministre, Pravind Jugnauth, qui n'a pas pu honorer de sa présence la soirée, en raison d'imprévis, sans doute le dossier Chagos. Parmi les autres personnalités présentes, on comptait des diplomates, tels que Zhu Liying, ambassadeur de la République populaire de Chine à Maurice, qui fut l'un des orateurs, et Salman Al Farisi, secrétaire général de l'Association des pays riverains de l'océan Indien. David Koon Kam King, président de la CBC, a souligné ses accomplissements au cours de ses 26 années d'existence, marquées par 13 présidences et une croissance continue du nombre de membres, aujourd'hui porté à 352. Il a également mis en avant les missions commerciales réussies organisées dans 15 villes réparties dans huit pays, ainsi que la signature de 25 protocoles d'accord avec des organisations professionnelles et commerciales. Il a salué la contribution de Charles Li Foo Wing, un des anciens présidents fondateurs, en rendant hommage à sa mémoire et rappelant son dévouement inébranlable à la CBC même durant sa maladie. Un moment fort de la soirée a été la remise d'une distinction honorifique à l'un des membres de la CBC, Noël Leung Shing, récipiendaire du GOSK.

et Tesla à Shanghai et d'organiser des conférences mensuelles qui permettent aux membres d'aborder des sujets d'actualité, notamment la régulation des actifs virtuels, l'intelligence artificielle et des questions environnementales, sociales et de gouvernance (ESG). La CBC a également annoncé son intention de former une nouvelle génération de leaders des affaires.

Le discours de l'ambassadeur de Chine, Zhu Liying, a porté sur les relations sino-africaines, notamment dans le cadre du Forum sur la coopération sino-africaine (FOCAC). Il a également souligné l'importance pour Maurice de tirer parti de sa position stratégique comme centre financier international pour favoriser les opportunités commerciales entre la Chine et l'Afrique. Tout au long de l'année, la CBC a organisé plusieurs événements notables, y compris une rencontre avec la ministre du Commerce, Dorine Chukowry, et une mission à Shanghai. Ces événements ont permis aux membres de la CBC de se tenir informés des tendances économiques et d'élargir leur réseau.

Le dîner présidentiel 2024 a réaffirmé l'engagement de la CBC à promouvoir les relations commerciales, à encourager le dialogue entre les secteurs public et privé et à renforcer les liens économiques internationaux, notamment avec la Chine et l'Afrique. La CBC se tourne désormais vers de nouvelles initiatives et missions commerciales pour l'année à venir, avec l'ambition de renforcer encore davantage son rôle de facilitateur des affaires à Maurice et au-delà.

Le président de la CBC a détaillé les trois principaux objectifs de l'organisme, dont celui de faciliter les affaires car la CBC organise régulièrement des événements permettant aux chefs d'entreprise, ministres et diplomates de se rencontrer. Elle a également accueilli des délégations de Chine, de Malaisie et de Singapour cette année et prévoit de recevoir une délégation de Shanghai la semaine prochaine. Figure aussi la promotion des missions commerciales internationales car chaque année, la CBC organise des missions commerciales à l'étranger. Cette année, une délégation a participé à la World Chinese Entrepreneur Convention à Kuala Lumpur, rencontrant 4 000 délégués. L'année prochaine, la CBC projette de visiter des entreprises en Afrique de l'Ouest ainsi que des usines de BYD

LE «PRESIDENT'S DINNER» DE LA CHINESE BUSINESS CHAMBER A ÉTÉ L'OCCASION POUR DANY CHUNG FOR YUEN DE RAPPELER À SES MEMBRES QU'ILS DOIVENT S'ADAPTER À UN ENVIRONNEMENT EN PERPÉTUELLE ÉVOLUTION.

SANDRA ROUSSEAU

RENDEZ-VOUS incontournable, le traditionnel President's Dinner de la Chinese Business Chamber (CBC), a, cette année, coïncidé avec la célébration de son 27^e anniversaire. Cette rencontre annuelle très attendue a réuni un parterre de personnalités du monde économique et politique.

Cet événement annuel emblématique de la CBC représente un moment privilégié pour célébrer les réussites de l'organisation, resserrer les liens qui unissent ses membres et réfléchir collectivement aux avancées qui animent la Chambre, a souligné d'emblée son président, Dany Chung For Yuen. Depuis sa fondation en 1999, la CBC s'est progressivement imposée comme un acteur incontournable du paysage entrepreneurial mauricien, œuvrant à la promotion de l'esprit d'entreprise, au développement des relations d'affaires et au renforcement des échanges culturels entre les communautés chinoise et mauricienne.

«Notre mission demeure claire : créer des opportunités et accompagner nos membres ainsi que nos partenaires dans un environnement économique en perpétuelle évolution», a rappelé le président.

C'était également l'occasion pour Dany Chung For Yuen de rappeler à ses invités que la CBC se distingue par la constance et la qualité de ses initiatives : conférences économiques, séances d'échanges et débats sur des sujets d'actualité, parmi lesquels la Finance Bill Talk. Désireuse de diversifier ses actions, la CBC s'intéresse désormais à des thématiques émergentes. Elle a récemment organisé un atelier de deux jours sur l'aquaponie, animé par M. Stander, élu aqua-cultivateur de l'année en Afrique du Sud. Une belle manière de souligner que l'entrepreneuriat ne se limite pas au monde des affaires, mais englobe également la connaissance, la durabilité et la créativité.

«Notre engagement n'a jamais été aussi fort», a affirmé le président de la CBC, en réitérant un message central : promouvoir l'innovation, la collaboration et l'inclusivité. «Le monde évolue à une vitesse fulgurante. L'émergence de nouvelles technologies, l'ouverture de nouveaux marchés et la montée de nouveaux défis nous imposent de nous adapter, d'investir dans notre jeunesse et de renforcer nos partenariats internationaux», a-t-il déclaré avec conviction. Il a également rappelé que, ces dernières années, la CBC a conduit plusieurs missions économiques en Malaisie et en Chine, consolidant ainsi son rôle de passerelle d'opportunités entre Maurice et l'Asie. Cette année marque d'ailleurs une étape symbolique : la Chambre siège désormais au Conseil de la Mauritius Chamber of Commerce and Industry (MCCI), où elle est représentée par son ancien président, David Koon.

RENFORCER LES LIENS STRATÉGIQUES

Par ailleurs, la CBC entend poursuivre sa mission de trait d'union entre le secteur privé et les institutions publiques.

«Nous voulons offrir davantage de valeur à nos membres et nos partenaires d'affaires, multiplier les initiatives ciblées, renforcer nos plateformes de réseautage et ouvrir de nouvelles perspectives de croissance et de coopération», a indiqué Dany Chung For Yuen. Et de citer quelques exemples : la CBC a récemment rencontré l'Attorney General, Gavin Glover, pour discuter de réformes légales, le ministre du Travail, Reza Uteem, pour aborder les questions liées au travail et l'ambassadeur Gaëtan Siew pour explorer de nouvelles pistes de coopération économique sino-mauricienne.

Plusieurs figures du monde politique ont répondu présent à l'événement, dont Shakeel Mohamed, le ministre des Terres et du Logement ; Reza Uteem, le ministre du Travail ; Michael Sik Yuen, le ministre du Commerce et de la Protection des consommateurs ; Osman Mahomed, le ministre du Transport ; ainsi que Karen Foo-Kune Bacha, la Junior Minister chargée de la Jeunesse et des Sports.

Bien plus qu'un simple dîner, cet anniversaire a mis en exergue l'importance pour la communauté des affaires sino-mauricienne de renforcer ses liens avec l'ensemble de la société - une valeur profondément enracinée dans la culture chinoise - afin de progresser ensemble vers un avenir harmonieux et porteur d'espoir. L'événement a également été l'occasion d'exprimer une profonde gratitude envers les partenaires et sponsors qui accompagnent la CBC dans ses initiatives tout au long de l'année.
